

COURSE INFORMATION

Media for Representation, IAED 211

Prerequisite: FA 131

Lecture 1 hr, Lab 3 hrs

Course Description

The 211 “Media for Representaton” course offers an introduction to computer generated 2-D drawing and 3-D modeling and is a prerequisite of “Technical Drawing”.

Students are expected to use the 2D and 3D computer visualizaton technology as a dynamic design representation tool to create and communicate their design ideas.

211 is a “hands-on” course, in witch each class will start with a lecture/demonstraiton followed by an assignment supervised by the instructor to help students to develop their 2D and 3D imaging skills. With exercises and homework assignments students get the opportunity to practice with the new tool on their own.

Students are expected to keep a logbook for this course. The logbook should be used for first sketches and ideas of given assignments and homeworks and should also reflect the design process. Size, color and shape of the logbook can be chosen by the student.

Students should have a flash memory stick to backup their work from the system, since assignments are to be saved for future reference and/or assesment.

Evaluation Methods

Students are expected to follow directons, meet the assignment objectves, complete the assignment on time. They are expected to find unique solutions to the given assignments, transfer informatoin from previous assignments and have the ability to work and think independently.

Grading Breakdown

Lab work:	40%	Assignments
Midterm:	20%
Final:	20%	Practical skills
Homework:	20%

Attendance and Participation

Students are expected to show up on time as there are lecture topics that cannot be made up outside of the class! Late arrivals are disruptive.

Students are required to atend the class during assigned times.

Students are expected to utlize their work time during class productively.

Students who need additonal help should make an appointment with her/his instructor. Appointments can be directly made with the instructor or via e-mail.

Students who fail to show up for an exam due to health problems, will be evaluated right afer the ending date on the doctor's report.

Instructor Information: Tijen Sonkan Türkkan

FF 411A, 1792

sonkan@bilkent.edu.tr

Graduate Student: Negin Froughisaeid